2003 BROOM

The Broom was named after James Wesley Broom, who was the school's first president. He died in September 1925 during the first school session, so in remembrance of him the student body named the first yearbook after him, and to this day it's known as the Broom.

If These

Walls

Could

Talk...

Although the walls of Delta State are not particularly a beautiful sight, the stories they could tell would astound you. From changing faces to changing architecture, the only witness of the metamorphosis would be the walls. These walls surround the people with warmth and memories that will never be forgotten. Not only are they the foundation for the school, but they are the support for the next generation of students.

If these walls could speak what would they say? Which stories would they select to tell us first? Would they silence us by saying nothing at all? Or would they take a walk down memory lane? These are just a few of the many questions to be uncovered in this yearbook.

If These Walls Could Talk ...

"Penney has a commitment to students and her employees. Her patience and understanding nature makes her a wonderful employer."

— Jamye Long

"Penney is a very kind and understanding boss, and she is enjoyable to work for."

— Judy Godbold

"There are not enough kind words to express Penney's personality! Only she's diligent, hard working, kind, and has a wonderful sense of humor to lighten any situation."

— Suzanne Usery-Oglesby

Dedication

Penney Gong

The 2003 Broom staff proudly dedicates this yearbook to Penney Gong. In 1976, Delta State University hired an ambitious, caring, transcript clerk in the registrar's office. This was just the beginning for Penney Gong, whose cheerful willingness to assist others, exemplary guidance, and her unwavering impartiality earned her respect from her family, friends, students, faculty, and staff. Her love, kindness, and fairness to everyone are qualities rarely found in today's world. In her twenty-six years with Delta State, Penney became the coordinator of graduation, earned her own college degree, and became the registrar in 2000. Also, she received the first H.L. Nowell Staff Award and the Melvin Jones Award.

Penney and her husband, Eddie, have three children-- Alicia, Shane, and Neil--all of which are DSU graduates, and two grandchildren, Corie and Jessica. In the words of her children, "We are so proud to call her mother, not just for all that she has shown and done for us, but also for all that she has accomplished at and for Delta State."

As a work study in the registrar's office for three consecutive years, I was lucky enough to work closely with Penney. I am honored to have been given the opportunity to know such a wonderful person, and I am thankful for all she has taught me. We wish you the best of luck in the future!

Brown Bag

Statesmen Attend Annual Luncheon: State Capitol Welcomes DSU Students

By: Donald Box

On Wednesday, February 13, 2002, members of the Student Government Association and the Career Ambassadors of Delta State University attended the annual Brown Bag Luncheon held at the state's capitol. This annual luncheon allows students to interact with some of the state's representatives, senators, and others that make up the governmental body for the state of Mississippi. Upon arrival, the students immediately began setting up the reserved area in which the luncheon would take place. Once the students were settled in, it was now time to explore the capitol building. What were the students to gain from this experience? According to SGA president Josh Manley, "Students that had the opportunity to attend this wonderful event should learn how the state legislature works directly and how it affects DSU.

Justin Ferguson, Governmental Affairs Committee Chairman of the SGA, was more concerned about how students would react to this experience. "Those students that are present today should value the essence of student and legislature interaction," Ferguson said. Attending a function such as this will allow students to gain many things, such as a chance to meet some of the state's behind-the-scenes people. Laura Dyer, Attorney General of the SGA, was given such an opportunity. "I've attended the Brown Bag Luncheon three times and today I had the opportunity to meet the Chairman of the Board of Universities and Committee.

For Dr. David Potter, president of DSU, the highlight of the day was more on the social side. "I enjoyed talking to my good buddy Charlie Capps during the luncheon," he said. As the day began to come to an end, Dr. Blansett made a very remarkable statement concerning the day's events. "It's one of the most effective ways of lobbying for DSU to ensure that the input of the state's funds produce the output of academically inclined leaders of tomorrow."

Alisa Kirk

Broom Editor

This has been a great year for Delta State and the Broom. For students, faculty, and staff, I hope this book paints an accurate picture of life at Delta State and provides many, many memories that will last a lifetime. This past year, I have learned so much about what it takes to put together a yearbook and about how much work is involved. Also, I was blessed with an awesome staff who worked very hard and loved to have fun. I love you all and I really appreciate your dedication. I would like to personally thank my advisor, Bill Moses, assistant editor, Sissi Robinson, and photo editor, Easton Selby, for their time, persistence, and help with this yearbook. I could not have done it without you guys.

Delta State means a lot to me because I have learned so much here, and I have made so many friends who will last a lifetime. I have had the privilege to either work with or for this university's faculty and staff, and they have made a great impression on me. Thank you for your time and support during both the rough times and the best of times. Delta State will always be special to me. It's been a great three years!
